

Mississippi River National River & Recreation Area (MN)

Marnie Sciamanda is currently serving at the Mississippi National River and Recreation Area in the Twin Cities, Minnesota. She grew up in the Twin Cities and studied Environmental Science and Biology at the University of St. Thomas in St. Paul. After graduation, she moved to the Hudson Valley to work for the state of New York's Hudson River Estuary Program. She is eager to be back in Minnesota and sharing the beauty of another great river, the Mississippi. She is passionate about all things environmental, but especially habitat restoration, environmental justice, and sustainable agriculture.
